Laos Denies Ground Forces Are In Laos

INGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Melvin R. Laird said American airpower but not ground forces are being used to protect the U.S. position in Laos. He said there has been no basic change in U.S. policy.

Laird said the U.S. president has made clear the use of American airpower to protect U.S. forces in Laos. Laird told newsmen, "There are no military forces in ground combat in Laos."

Laird called the use of airpower against North Vietnam's major supply route, the Ho Chi Minh Trail through Laos, vital to the U.S. effort in Vietnam.

Bombing of enemy supplies on the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos by agreement with the Laotian government began in 1964 under President Lyndon B. Johnson's administration. Laird and Mahon talked to newsmen briefly after Laird's appearance before a closed session of the appropriations subcommittee.

Study Atrocities
Mahon told newsmen his subcommittee will study alleged atrocities in Vietnam, including some reported in the past several days, but he said too much has been made of the allegations. "The subject of atrocities has been overdone," Mahon said. "War is war and things may be done that later appear to be atrocities."

THE THROB of war drums echoed around the West Patio of the Wilkinson Center Thursday, as Indian students presented a colorful pageant of music and dance. Participating in the war dance above are two leaders of tomorrow, Tom McGinnis of Idaho, and Alan D. Williams of Chifton, Ariz. Tom McGinnis also delighted the crowd with a solo "Eagle Dance." Tradition and color were the order of the day.

Benham Speaks

Navajos Take Lead In Education

If the present rate in Indian education continues, "it would not be equal to the general population's for 20 years if the rest stand still."

Dr. William Benham, acting commissioner of Indian Affairs, spoke to BYU Indian students, Indian tribal leaders and BYU Indian Education officials concerning Indian education and other problems at a banquet Wednesday.

Reporting that an attempt is being made to follow the leadership of the Navajo tribe in education, Dr. Benham traced some of the problems facing Indians which "become apparent in the Indian education programs."

The Indian people have not been involved in the decisions whites have made for them in education, whites have sought efficiency in education, Benham said, "when more involvement was what the Indian people wanted." Others should let the Indians make their decisions "and get out of the way."

"Self-directed activity" is the only meaningful process in helping the Indian People, he said. He added that when the "goal of endeavor is self-sufficiency or reliance, then the process or the means become important."

"The greatest significance in a cross cultural situation is attitude," he commented. There needs to be programs to "enable the Indian people to have wider choices" developed with an attitude of respect, deep understanding and historical retrospect.

Dr. Benham said the "concept of 'selves' is fast becoming a problem." The younger Indians mirror the attitude of their parents and "what a youngster thinks of himself" determines what he can do.

Exec Council Against Paying $2,000 For Letter Jackets

The major issue before the Executive Council Wednesday was whether it should give $2,000 to the Athletics Dept. to buy first-year lettermen's jackets.

Although the Council declined to vote on the matter, pending action in next week's Athletic Council meeting, the majority wanted to do away with the funding.

The Council has been paying this amount, but Bill Hephworth, vice-president of finance, recommended it be discontinued.

ASBYU President Ken

Kartchner reported that the proposal had been made to the Athletic Council, but that they had said "harrumphed."

Kartchner also reported that approximately $110 is already being taken from each student's tuition to pay for athletic programs.

Executive Vice-President Ken Murdock said that the money was not only used for athletic awards, though. He said it paid for building upkeep, free tickets for students at athletic events, recruitment and other things.

He added that it was impossible to be sure because "we can't find out" what the student funds are used for and how much does go into athletics.

Caldwell Counters

Vice-President of Athletics Cam Caldwell countered that the funding was a "meaningful contribution" and that "athletic awards were different than other awards."

To the argument that athletes should not be given free jackets when they were on scholarship, Caldwell said that only one-third of them were on scholarships.

Vernon Law Speaks Sunday

This month's 10-state fireside speaker is Vernon Law, former pitcher for the Pittsburgh Pirates and new addition to the BYU faculty.

Law, one of baseball's top pitchers, played for the pirates for 19 years. He won the Cy Young award for best pitcher in the National League in 1960 and also the Lou Gehrig award.

This award was for the baseball player who best exemplifies the ideals of Lou Gehrig, the courageous first-baseman for the New York Yankees.

Law is now assistant baseball coach at BYU and makes his home in Meridian, Idaho.

Disappearing Values: Kahn

Next 10, 20, or 30 years there will be a bigger change in the value system than ever before in the history of the world," Dr. Herman Kahn in his forum.

Speaking on the prospects for 2000, Dr. Kahn, author of "On War," a book on nuclear policy analysis, first the state of the world.

"The world is definitely changing today. Many of the real values have existed up till now are disappearing. The value of earning a living is not what it was before," stated Dr. Kahn.

Drug Costs
He stated, "The defense of vital economic or strategic interests is losing importance." After commenting that wars don't really solve anything, he added, "Japan and Germany, losers in the last war, are now the second and third largest world traders. It's no great tragedy to lose a war."

"Traditions are going too, along with totems and taboos. Today's societies are saying that a taboo which cannot be proven to be useful is irrational. The best example of this is Sweden where they are trying to get rid of all taboos. The only restraints now that can be broadened are treason, incest, drugs and violence," he said. The emphasis on masculinity was the last value that Dr. Kahn stated as losing importance. He explained that there is less emphasis on sports and other masculine achievements in the Europeanization of America."

Although there is a widespread rejection of values, Kahn said there will not be a "reckless abandon of values."

Individuality Stressed

Live Violently' Zoll Urges

... must learn again to live fully—not in terms of mass or settling our political attacks to frightened old presidents, but in terms of living lives of individual risk. We must imaginatively construct ways of honorable native self expression in a society largely in bondage to utility, safety, sanitation and satisfaction," declared Dr. J. A. Zoll Wednesday in his entitled "Violence and the American Tradition."

Zoll, chairman of the Philosophy and Classics Dept. at University of Saskatchewan, is a guest lecturer under the auspices of the Academics Thesis Committee and the collegiate Studies Institute. Zoll, who calls himself "an eccentric American," claims that "the American tradition is deeply rooted in Americans and is traceable from the motive of... discussing the frontier's violent acts, not only between men and nature, Dr. Zoll said two factors relevant to health. These are the substantial control by the individual of his destiny and the emergence of a functional code of masculinity and manly conduct.

"The frontier," declared Dr. Zoll, "provides an almost ultimate statement of individual potency and self realization." He defined "potency" as the ability of the individual to conceive himself as the primary factor in the determination of his fate and "self realization" as the process of coming to understand and gain confidence in one's capabilities and inner resources.

The frontier of yesterday provided the ideal climate for the individual "to hammer out this self knowledge and to maneuver in a situation of comprehensive freedom to pursue one's self conceived destiny."

Dr. Zoll maintains that risk, and by extension, some forms of violence or ritualized violence, are indispensable to self knowledge and potency.

He sees the two most prominent symptoms of the social malaise of the 20th century as a frantic and unsuccessful quest for individual self identity and a mounting anxiety over the loss of personal freedom and individual significance.

"America has moved too far from certain of the substantial values of the frontier heritage. More and more youth grow up in a society purged of risk without any real freedom, expunged of personal experience, devoid of adventure."

Dr. Zoll said our society has stripped away most of the socially condoned channels of personal violent activity. "By these I mean struggle and combat with nature and with human associates in terms of competitive activity."

"While the dream of the frontier with its violence, its intimacy with nature, its scope for self realization has dimmed, it has not disappeared," stated Dr. Zoll.

Moliere's 'Invalid'

Opens Tonight

The "Imaginary Invalid," opens tonight in the Pardee Drama Theatre.

Dr. Charles Metten of the Drama Dept. defies theatrical playing by playing the lead in a play he's directing. He has the starring role of Arzan.

Dr. Metten credits the appeal of "Invalid" as threefold: "It is universal in that it has lasted for audiences for over 300 years, audiences all over the world love it and it's fun!"

"Moliere tries to convey to his audience that they shouldn't become obsessed by anything and that in time of illness, be it physical or mental, the nature do her work," according to Dr. Metten.

Dr. Metten was on sabbatical last year and worked with the American Conservatory Theatre in San Francisco, where he attended classes and appeared in three productions. At ACT, company members instruct classes in which they have the most skill, be it acting, directing or mime. It was there that he learned the value of acting with his cast as a teaching method, the method he has now introduced at BYU.

In his 20 years of acting, Dr. Metten has appeared with Steve Forrest, Jeffery Hunter, Machale O'Sullivan, Peter Donat and Ruth White, and has directed the Santa Barbara Repertory Theatre and the Utah Shakespearean Festival.

Farnsworth In LA On Panel Studying Financial Requests

Dr. Raymond B. Farnsworth, BYU agronomy professor, is in Los Angeles this week participating on an evaluation panel for the National Science Foundation.

Dr. Farnsworth is among other professors from universities in the U.S. who have been selected to sit on panels during meetings of the National Science Foundation being held in Los Angeles Feb. 25-28.

The purpose of these panels is to study proposals and requests by different universities for financial grants from the National Science Foundation with headquarters in Washington D.C.

The requests, which are mainly for funds for instructional equipment in science education, are evaluated as to a university's eligibility and worthiness to receive such grants.

Evaluations are made in the areas of physical and engineering sciences, mathematics and biological sciences by outstanding men in each of these areas.

Dr. Farnsworth, who will be evaluating requests in the biological science area, is a former associate director of the Advanced Science Education Program for the National Science Foundation in Washington D.C.

He occupied this position while on leave from BYU in 1965.

Joggers Find Plan 'Great'

By DALE VAN ATTA
Universe Feature Writer

Pounds have been lost, muscles have formed and minutes have been added to the lives of faculty members involved in a jogging program began last October.

Kulon Francis, director of pre-physical therapy, developed the program and attempted to ignite enthusiasm in faculty members as a "strong advocate of the sound mind and sound body theory."

To provide incentive, he ordered three different shirts representing 100, 150 and 200 mile "clubs." With the use of a clock and running board posted in the Smith Fieldhouse, joggers shoot for these goals by adding miles to the chart each day.

First to reach the 200 mark was Phil Alben. When about his achievement, he said he runs two to five miles every day. "I wish more of the faculty got involved in the program, great, but then I guess you say I'm prejudiced as a pre-physical education," said Francis.

But Frank Santiago, chief of the Evening Classes Department, thinks the program "great." Santiago reported, has lost 12 pounds and 20 around the waist by running miles a night. He hopes to reach the 300 mile mark by the end of the academic year.

Francis stated, "Like in the runners in the program, many more will join in, excellent way to stay healthy."

ncil Chairman Rainer es Indian Education

Chairman of the Interstate Tribal Council and vice-president of the National Congress of American Indians told BYU students and tribal leaders that helping the Indians is the best effort to ourselves."

Rainer is also executive of the Commission on Indians in New Mexico. He said Indians have to train and have courage to solve problems of the people in lengthening their upgrading education and health.

One of the problems lack of guidance by the Indians. They do not encourage their children to attend schools and learn skills which is one of the drop-out figures. Rainer said "pride and dignity in the Indian school" needs to be.

He said "we have to share" in the responsibilities and give the Indians a service to our nation and then "we have a place to live on this planet."

Rainer commented. He said several programs are examples of help to the Indians and in their development of leadership.

"I know of no college or university which puts forth the effort BYU does to help the Indians, not only individually but nationwide."

He mentioned the farm and home management programs of BYU and added that he had testified in Washington that he could "recommend the kind of foster home care that the people of the Latter-day Saints programs have."

Illustrating tribal leadership and programs, Rainer told of the present movement to register Indians to vote in New Mexico. Indians in New Mexico make up the balance of the vote, resulting in more attention to Indians by congressmen and senators.

Rainer said the federal government is going "towards the individual freedom to decide what is best." The government is "offering their services to be contracted with the individual tribes when they are ready."

He described Indians as having a "collective pride and dignity, rich in spirit... who do not take to riots" and do not take the law into their own hands to settle disputes.

Tribal Leaders Meet Today To Discuss Indian Leadership

Indian tribal leaders from several tribes will be meeting today to discuss tribal programs that build Indian leadership.

Panels including the tribal leaders and BYU Indian students will also discuss the real needs on the reservations today.

Holly's Hollywood

Film Rated GP, But...

By HOLLY SMITH
Managing Editor

There is a fraud being perpetuated—"They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" is rated M, but it is very definitely an R film. "Horses" is now playing in Provo at the Paramount Theater, but I had the opportunity to preview it in Salt Lake two weeks ago. Needless to say, it was much different than was expected.

The story is quite simple. Boy wanders into dance marathon contest during the Depression. He becomes dance partner for girls during dance marathon contest during the Depression, boy—hold it, can't give away the ending!

Obviously for a picture hailed by some to be the best of the year, this simple story cannot be all there is to it. On one level, the story is a graphic mirror of the Depression, reflecting the type of people who would enter a marathon, the type of people who would watch a marathon and ultimately how and why they were run.

In a word, marathons existed and people participated in them because they had nothing better to do during the Depression. For some, it was the only way to get food and money, and for others it was a chance to get "slamming" or get rid of their own sorrows by watching others dance and occasionally run around a track for 45 days.

On a deeper level, the film reflects life, or life as the story was written and directed. Each character in the movie can be said to reflect a miserable human type, from Susannah York as the aspiring but down-and-out movie star who can only copy Jean Harlow, to Jane Fonda who has been beaten down so many times that the marathon becomes a must for her to win.

The marathon represents the rat race of life and what little it has to offer people—and with strings often attached to that.

To show the situation and the group of desperate people involved "realistically," a lot of foul language and foul situations are presented. In other words, it's a very tough and brutal film. One cannot prevent people from making films in this manner, but one can strongly object to the Motion Picture Association for rating the film GP—which is the same as M. For those movie-viewers who will not pay to see anything below an M—forget this film. Despite its strong points, excellent acting, an unusual story, and excellent filming, one cannot escape the fact that it is R—through and through.

London and New York in 1967 and ran on Broadway through two seasons, taking both the Tony Award and the Drama Critics' Circle Award as the best play of the year. "Hamlet" will play at BYU March 4 and 5.

"Hamlet" stars Robert Burr, who has acted in nine Shakespearean productions up to now, as well as in some 20 modern plays on Broadway or in major resident theaters, and in some 20 musical comedies to round out his experience.

He is probably best known, nationwide, for his television appearances which have included the Ben Casey series and, for the last two years, his role almost daily in the afternoon serial, "Love Is A Many Splendored Thing."

The same company will perform "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead," the play by Tom Stoppard which takes a look at the melodramatic events at Elsinore, not from the viewpoint of Hamlet, but as seen by his college chums who are sent to spy on him by his usurping uncle, Claudius.

The Lyceum series is a joint effort on the part of the community, the student body and the faculty to bring world renowned artists of a classical and cultural vein to the campus.

The Lyceum committee, which is currently headed by Dr. Harold Goodman, chairman of the Music Dept. and Steve Hunlow, vice president of culture, sponsored a concert by the world famous Van Cliburn last year.

This year they signed in Phyllis Curtin, leading soprano of the New York Metropolitan Opera, who was unable to complete her performance due to the fumes from the newly dry-cleaned curtains. However, the Nutcracker Suite by the West Ballet went as scheduled in January by the Lyceum committee.

BYU Netsters Downed By Trinity, Beat Corpus Christi

The BYU tennis team had its winning streak ended at three by number one ranked Trinity, 6-3. The Cougars came back the next day to defeat Corpus Christi, 7-2. Their record is now 4-1.

In the Trinity matchup, All-American Bob McKinley defeated BYU's All-American Zdravko Minick, 4-1. Coach Wayne Pearce said, "We played fairly well but could have done better, though they had the better team."

Minick, Larry Hall and Pat Landau were victorious in the Corpus Christi tilt. For the Cougars, J.C. transfer Marty Hennessy won his match making him undefeated so far this season with a 5-0 record.

Hennessy is only a sophomore from American River Junior College in northern California.

Yesterday the Cougars beat Texas A & M but at press time results were not available.

Take WAC Lead

Miners Outrun Cougars, 81-70

By MIKE TWITTY
Universe Sports Editor

(EL PASO) — Texas-El Paso moved into first place in the Western Athletic Conference with an 81-70 win over BYU here Thursday night.

The Miners, now 9-3, have a one-half game over Utah which lost to New Mexico 93-74, Utah, 9-4, can clinch a tie for the conference title by defeating UTEP here Saturday night. On the other hand, a win Saturday for UTEP will give the Miners first place outright. UTEP finishes its season next Wednesday at New Mexico.

The WAC winner meets Utah State March 7 in Provo in the first round playoff of the NCAA Far West Regionals.

UTEP broke open a close, well-played ball game midway through the second half as the aggressive Miner defense made several key steals and forced numerous Cougar turnovers.

Nate "the Skate" Archibald led the Miner surge with six straight points to give UTEP a 57-47 lead with 11:12 remaining. BYU cut the margin to 67-60 with 7:02 left on a jump shot by Phil Tolstrup, but that was as close as the Cougars could come. The Miners biggest lead was 81-66 in the final seconds of play.

The first half was a nip and tuck affair with BYU leading most of the way. UTEP shot off to a 4-0 lead but the Cougars came back to go ahead 11-10 with five minutes gone. The game was tied at 13-12 and 14-14 before BYU went ahead 16-15 on a jump shot by Paul Ruffner.

The Cougars led by five through most of the first half until Pies Vann tied the score at 33 all. UTEP's biggest lead of the half was 37-33. A layup by Scott Warner cut the halftime lead to 37-35.

The Cougars' only offense was Phil Tolstrup as Archibald held Doug Howard to a season low of eight points.

There was no protest of any kind, although the crowd was loud in verbal attacks against the officials, Rudy Marich and Bob Korte. The two officials had to be escorted to the dressing room at halftime by helmeted police. BYU, 4-9 in the WAC and overall, finishes its WAC season Saturday night in Albuquerque where "peaceful demonstrators" have been promised by the Student Union.

New Mexico officials have the usual precautions, and one official admitted yesterday that due to the coyot of the Gymnasium, adequate riot control is impossible. Thus the BYU goes into its final road game tension again over overshadow basketball game.
